

What is Adverse Action?

An action that is adverse to the interests of the consumer applicant and has been taken based on the information contained in the consumer report provided by VICTIG. Examples include denial of an application for residency, employment, or a volunteer position. The Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) mandates that certain steps must be followed if and when the consumer applicant is the subject of adverse action. Here's how it works:

